The ever popular “Tree of Life” motif

The tree of life is an ancient symbol found in many cultures around the world. It represents growth, rebirth and the unity between all things, physical and spiritual. Today, of course, it’s also a symbol of the fight against climate change. Trees soak up carbon dioxide in the atmosphere. We need to stop deforestation, and plant more of them.

Want to help?

Donations to organisations like Jolibat Trust are a great way to do so. For every pound, ten times as many trees can be planted in Africa as it costs to plant trees in the UK; they grow quicker; and they help to benefit local people, reducing soil erosion, reversing deforestation and providing timber and fruits for local communities.
