Filigree t-lite holders

Placed in the middle of a space, these Indian t-lite holders look great. Place them against a wall and they transform the room, casting intricate lacework shadows that shift in the dancing flame of the candle. They make excellent gifts.

Nobunto Candles

Nobunto Candles, based in South Africa, is a new supplier for us and we highly recommend them. Their excellent packaging makes them perfect as gifts.

Dignity and pride are still missing for many in the post-apartheid era, these are key qualities which Nobunto Candles tries to instill in its workers. The suppression of human rights can still be seen today in some of the more deprived parts of South Africa. At Nobunto, the entire production process is in the hands of a small team of artisans, giving them increasing self-confidence and allowing some wonderful creative initiatives to occur. In the words of an old South African proverb, "the absence of the chief increases respect". Economically, the artisans have security and a positive feeling of responsibility for the direction of their futures.

This is the first time that Shared Earth has bought directly from South Africa and we are delighted to be doing so. Nobunto Candles runs according to WFTO (World Fair Trade Organisation) principles and is yearly certified under the Swiss Fair Trade certifier Fair For Life.

Hand-carved soapstone t-lite holders

Our stone items are hand carved by the master craftsmen of Agra, descendants of the artisans who worked on the Taj Mahal.

These stone pieces are made from Palewa (grey) or Gorara (beige/brown) stone, so there can be interesting variations in the colour and patterns within the stone, making each product unique.

Tara Projects runs informal learning centres for over 1,000 children especially girls in disadvantaged parts of New Delhi and northern India.

The centres also help Tara to reach out to the parents and organise awareness programmes on social issues like child labour. Our purchases help Tara both to support these learning centres and to create livelihood opportunities for the parents.
