

Molten glass & teak root sculptures

Bestselling range!

In a village in the hills above Ubud in Bali is a glassblowing workshop. In one corner two women are preparing broken sheet glass for recycling. Close by four men rush to and fro heating the glass until it glows, then deftly blowing it into an extraordinary range of shapes.

Elsewhere other artisans are preparing discarded fragments of root. The result is a collection of beautiful and unique pieces, the glass melted to hug the natural contours of the root on which they perch, frozen in time like Dali's molten watches...

Green Stone Buddhas and Ganeshas

These sandstone buddhas and gods are made in a small workshop in rural Bali – they're great both indoors and out, are well priced and extremely popular. We recommend them. Sandstone is a great eco-friendly option as it needs only a fraction of the energy needed to create man-made stone like concrete or brick.

These ducks don't just swim around and quack! They care about the rivers and ponds they live in. When you buy one, they act! For every duck sold, we make a donation of 50p to Sungai Watch, which builds river barriers in Indonesia to collect plastic and other waste. Your purchase could stop 1kg of plastic – about 50 plastic bottles – from ending up in the ocean. See www.sungai.watch for more information.

This duck is quacking especially loudly! A great gift for someone who talks too much!

Usually we sell these ducks with a bamboo tube, so they quack (bestsellers, p254). This time they're just quietly swimming around... Hand carved and painted with local albesia wood in Bali.

A bit early for Christmas isn't it? We just love these duck Santas, and we sold out this year by October (one of them in August). We'll order more this year but get your orders in early and you can be certain you won't miss out (order now and just instruct us when you want them delivered). We'll give you a 10% discount if you place your order before the end of March.

Bamboo chimes make a mild, muted resonant sound which seems more natural and less intrusive than metal chimes – it can be deeply soothing in fact and not at all annoying as some chimes can be.

Seaside whitewash windchimes

From a small workshop near Ubud, Bali, run by Titi Mertha (see PI48), who has supplied us for many years. We loved hearing how much our orders support her and her family. It is important to everyone at Shared Earth that we improve artisans' lives. A single order can go a long way and that means so much to us!

Bamboo windchimes

Bamboo is easily renewable and can play an important part in tackling climate change. As a raw material it is excellent both for environmental and economic sustainability in rural areas. It takes up little space, grows to maturity in under 5 years, and can be harvested regularly. For products like these chimes, it's ideal, as it grows freely in the woods and empty spaces close to our producer's workshop. This is in a village near Ubud, Bali; they already live a sustainable lifestyle, growing their rice and other crops close by, and the sale of windchimes allows them to maintain the long-term sustainability of their community.

Hand-carved painted wooden birds

Bestselling range

These lifelike birds are handcarved in Bali using sustainable albesia wood. They take ages to carve and paint, to provide all the detail which makes them so realistic. Wayan Dirga, who makes them, is one of the most highly skilled artisans in Bali; considering he's never seen any of these birds, the results he achieves are remarkable.

Paper mobiles

These mobiles are handmade in Thailand using traditional techniques. 'Saa' paper comes from the bark of the Mulberry tree, which every year peels off, and can be used to make paper. It's a totally sustainable material; if not used, it would simply go to waste.

Tota hangings

A great selection of hangings, vibrant in colour and great fun!

These mobiles are made in various workshops in the slums of Kolkata or in villages nearby. Sasha helps the women who make them to acquire skills in drawing, cutting, stitching, stuffing etc, and they become not just economically empowered but more confident in raising their voices against domestic violence, discrimination and other problems.

The materials used have minimum impact on the environment, and machinery is limited to a small number of sewing machines.

* Please note: All sizes given for tota bells are approximate.
These products are not toys. Keep out of reach of young children *

Catch your dreams!

Dreamcatchers are a Native American Indian tradition, supposed to protect you from bad dreams, whilst letting the good dreams through; they slip through the hole in the centre, down the feathers to the sleeping person below. Ours are made in Bali, and our purchases keep several families in work each year.

Iron bells and chimes

Made by artisans in New Delhi, India, out of recycled wrought iron, these bells are a wonderful addition to our metal chime range. The scrap iron is shredded so that less energy is used in the melting process. After the iron is melted, it is then cooled and solidified into these carefully shaped bells and chimes. Wrought iron is a good recycled metal as it has a low carbon content and the recycle process saves energy whilst retaining original quality.

Aspiration International works for the welfare of artisans and their families all over India, by promoting and developing cottage industries, improving social and economic conditions and providing fair wages to the artisans.
