

Egg shakers

These shakers are hand-painted in Bali using a special technique. The wood used is from the fast-growing albesia tree, which grows to maturity in only 7 or 8 years. It's often considered a 'weed' by local people, growing up everywhere whether it's wanted or not. The shakers are filled with seeds.

Note: Water-based paints, no lead included.

Save the rainforest!

The Amazon rainforest faces serious threats, and along with it, its unique wildlife. A fifth of it has already been lost to cattle ranching, agriculture, development, logging and oil exploration. Deforestation brings more CO2 into the atmosphere, increasing global warming, which in turn increases the risks of fires and a drying out of the forest. It's vital we do all we can to save it.

Bamboo grows quickly, requires no irrigation, pesticides or fertilisers, sequesters carbon, and inhibits soil erosion, making it is one of the most sustainable materials there is for craft production.

The puzzle box makers of Saharanpur

In the half-light of a darkened room away from the afternoon heat, the jigsaw rattles and knocks as the master puzzle box maker spins a block of wood around the pulsing blade.

Puzzle boxes are traditionally made from sheesham, a type of rosewood. We ensure that the Indian suppliers of our sheesham wood products have the Vrikish Legality Assessment and Verification Scheme certificates to confirm that their products make use of legally procured wood from managed forests where trees are replanted.

We are also working with our Indian suppliers to move away from Sheesham to more sustainable timbers such as mango wood. You can see two of our new mango wood puzzle boxes on this page.
